JEWISH NEW YEAR TO BE SEPTEMBER FEAST.

The Jews, on Sept. 9, will usher in the 5,676th year in the Hebrew calendar. The feast, which has an annual religious and historical significance, is called Rosh Hoshanah. Ten days later the "Day of Atonement," Yom Kippur, will be observed. Special services in all of the synagogues throughout the world will be held.

In the Jewish tradition, the Rosh Hoshanah marks the anniversary of the creation of the world, supposed to have taken place 5,676 years ago. The present Rosh Hoshanah, therefore, will mark the beginning of the year 5,676.

The change of date, however, is of little or no importance, and if the Jewish New Year's Day had no further significance, its appeal to the Jews would be very faint indeed. It is not the change of year, but the change of life, that this day stresses, that makes it stand out as one of the holiest days in the Jewish calendar. Herein it radically differs from the civil New Year; it is a day set apart for introspection and self-examination.

The sacred character of this day is implied in the two other names by which it is known, viz., the day of memorial and the day of the blowing of trumpets. In the first place it is the day of memorial, of remembrance. As such, it calls upon the Jews to remember the divine purpose of his life; secondly, it is the day of the blowing of the trumpets. Its purpose is to rouse and stir him to high resolves and nobler deeds.

The Rosh Hoshanah derives its significance from the fact that it is but the introduction to the day of atonement, which follows 10 days later. "Before one can realize the need of atonement," says a statement, "it is necessary that he become conscious of his shortcomings; for so long as we imagine ourselves whole, it may never occur to us that we need a physician; so long that we do not admit our sinfulness, we shall hardly feel the need of being forgiven."

"Hence, to make the atonement possible, we must have Rosh Hoshanah, which is also designated as the Yom Hadin—the day of judgment—the day wherein we weigh ourselves in the balance, and, perforce, find ourselves wanting; for there is no righteous man upon the earth that doeth good always and sinneth not."

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Since last report, Lewis Easley was fined $100 for violating the local option law.

Dave Andrew was found guilty of violating the city sanitary ordinance and was fined $11.50.

Virgil Roberts was tried by a jury on charge of disturbing the peace, for knocking a fellow down who used profane language about Roberts' place of business—and was found not guilty.

The following were fined $11.50 each for minor offenses: Bonner Williams, B. F. Ward, (two cases) Vester Davis, W. C. Phillips, Clifford Wilson, Will Jones and Frank Cape.

Well, we have nothing to say editorially, about the hanging of Leo Frank, because we have more killings, night-riding, etc., in Fulton county than any other in Kentucky—including the notorious county of Breathitt. The pot should not accuse the kettle of being black.

Mrs. Will Barry and Mrs. Swayne Walker and little daughter returned last week from a short visit at Three States.

LOST: Gold Bar Pin with topazes and pearls. Finder return to this office and receive reward.

Judge Herbert Carr and M. Roach, of Fulton, were in Hickman Tuesday.

Goalder Johnson and W. C. Reed were in Mayfield Sunday night.

FUNERAL 21 YEARS AFTER "SUBJECT" WAS BURIED.

Dawson Springs, Ky., Aug. 23.—A strange funeral service was held at the Baptist church at Silent Run, ten miles from this place, Thursday. Milton Sisk died at his home in Hopkins county twenty-one years ago, and at his request no funeral service was to be held until the one hundredth anniversary of his birth. Thursday was the date and his grandson, the Rev. E. G. Sisk, of Clay, preached the sermon.

The service was conducted to fulfill a dream that Milton Sisk had thirty-eight years ago. He dreamed he was one hundred years old and died and his funeral was preached by a grandson of the elder Sisk's one hundredth birthday.

Just before his death he requested his family not to have any funeral service when he died, that he had faith in his dream and believed that in time one of his grandsons would be a preacher, and he wanted him to preach the funeral on the hundredth anniversary of his birth. At the time of the dream the Rev. Sisk, who preached the funeral, was only two years old. There were 150 of Sisk's descendants at the funeral service. The audience numbered 600.

All those members of the Grand Old Pessimistic Party who agreed to sell their wheat and corn at 20c following Mr. Wilson's election will please deliver at the front door of the Courier office any time between now and Christmas.

F. M. Grout, of New Orleans, was here Thursday and Friday of last week on business.

A BIT OF PHILOSOPHY
FROM
WET WEATHER TALK
BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

It hain't no use to grumble
and complane;
It's jest as cheap and easy to rejoice.—
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,
W'y, rain's my choice.

Men ginerly, to all intents—
Although they're apt to grumble some—
Puts most theyr trust in Providence,
And takes things as they come.

In this existunce, dry and wet
Will overtake the best of men—
Some little skift o' clouds'll shet
The sun off now and then.—

And mayby, whilse you're wondern who You've fool-like lent your umbrrell' to,
And want it—out'll pop the sun,
And you'll be glad you hain't got none!

Miss Leona Wright, of Morganfield, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. G. M. Ross, returned home Sunday.

Mrs. J. R. Brown visited her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Roper, of near State line, a few days last week.

W. W. Bee is back from Little Rock to get his gin in readiness for the cotton season. Mrs. Bee will arrive here in a short time.

Miss Lois Moore, of Sherman, Miss., returned home Saturday after a visit to Miss Dorothy Moore.

VICTIM OF ELECTION DAY FIGHT IS DEAD.

Walter Allison, age 47 years, who was wounded in a three-cornered pistol and shot gun duel at the Jess Anderson store on Aug. 7th, died at 8 o'clock Thursday night. Allison was shot through the lung by Bert Wallace, who was instantly killed in this fight. The bullet entered his back and was taken out of the left breast. Death was not unexpected, as pneumonia had set up in the injured lung.

Mr. Allison owned a half interest in the Jesse Anderson store, where the shooting started, and had been in this section for about 25 years. By profession he was a steam engineer and was unmarried. He leaves two brothers—Oscar and James, the latter residing at Erin, Tenn. Oscar was also in the fatal fight, being shot in one arm, but not seriously.

The funeral was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, in charge of the Odd Fellows lodge, of which deceased was a member, but his membership was in Vicksburg, Miss. The remains were interred in the Odd Fellows lot in the city cemetery.

CRYSTAL MOVIE SHOW CHANGED HANDS MONDAY.

The Crystal Theatre, a motion picture and vaudeville show, has been sold by the proprietor, J. O. West, to A. W. Parker and H. C. Taylor, both of Cairo, Ills. The deal was made Saturday and the new owners took charge Monday morning.

Parker & Taylor are experienced picture show men and live wires. They promise to the patrons of the Crystal as good or better than they have been receiving and will keep the standard up to that established by the former managers.

GRAVES COUNTY WORKS PRISONERS ON ROADS.

The fiscal court of Graves county has decided to work their prisoners on the county highways. This is the right step in the right direction, and Fulton county would come out ahead if she did likewise. On the subject the Mayfield Messenger says:

"This order was made in compliance of an act passed by the 1914 session of the legislature. The prisoners will be used on roads leading from Mayfield and will not be taken such a distance but that they can be brought back to prison on the same day. Either a deputy jailer or special officer will have charge of the prisoners while at work, this matter to be decided later by the county judge and county attorney. But the work of the prisoners will be under the supervision of the county road engineer."

It would be a good idea, while the steam roller is in this vicinity, to use for a few days on Hickman streets. Several of these streets are already graveled, but are wavy and rough because the gravel was never rolled. This roller has with it an attachment similar to a harrow, used for digging up bumpy streets. After the harrowing process, run the roller over it and smooth it down and you have a good street. We realize the city is short of available cash, but, in view of the splendid opportunity to get the roller and the little it would cost, it seems we could well afford to economize in some other branch for the time being. The big expense has been putting on the gravel; the small expense would be putting the finishing touches to it. This is a chance to get the maximum of service for an additional minimum of cost.

Mrs. S. B. Parker and Miss Lydia Harrison left last week for Troy, Tenn., to visit relatives.

Will Hammond and family have returned from a visit with Mayfield relatives.

HEAVY RAINS AND SEVERE WIND STORMS.

Quite a severe wind storm visited this section Thursday night and Friday morning following a continuous 40-hours rain, and did considerable damage. Many fields of corn were layed low, as the ground was very soft, and big damage may result unless most favorable weather conditions follow. Other growing crops suffered in a similar manner.

In Hickman light and telephone wires were blown down and the three companies were forced to work full crews all day Friday in the rain to make repairs.

Many roads were badly washed and both shade and fruit trees suffered from the wind.

The temperature dropped so low Friday evening that overcoats were comfortable and quite a few were to be seen in use.

For three days and nights rain fell with varying intensity and without a let-up. Estimates place the rain-fall from 4 to 5 inches.

BAD NEGRO KILLED BY FULTON POLICE.

Buster Slayden a Mayfield negro, has been the terror of Western Kentucky for several years and officers in many places have been searching for him. He met his fate in Fulton Friday when he was shot and killed by Chief of Police Young Eaker and Special I. C. Officer Leander Robertson.

Slayden, it is said, was making an effort to pull a pistol from his pocket when the officers took shots at the bad man. The negro when searched had a blue steel revolver in his pocket.

Slayden was wanted at Mayfield to answer to the charge of stealing a lot of silverware from the home of W. J. Johnston, the druggist, last winter. The attempt to arrest him led to the killing.

LET'S STOP TRADING.

America is doing well, in fact, too well, to be drawn into the European war and should not do so unless very grave offense is given. As neither Germany nor Great Britain and her allies will abate their violation of the laws of neutrality on the ocean, why not suspend all maritime intercourse with the warring nations until the European war is over, or until they can agree to observe the laws of neutrality. We had better lose some that way than to lose more and the blood of our sons and brothers besides in a prolonged and cruel war.

If any of our people want to persist in trading and going over to the warring countries of Europe let it be understood they do it at their own risk.—Fulton Leader.

S. L. Dodds and Geo. B. Terrett are building silos on their farms this week. If the value of the silo has not been greatly exaggerated, every farm in Fulton county should have one.

The 14-year old son of John Davis, of the lower end of the county, died on the night of the 19th inst. Malarial fever was the cause of death; burial at Columbus, Ky.

Mrs. E. A. Hammond and children have returned from a visit with relatives near Dukedom, Ky.

HINTS ON CARE OF CHILD.

Children, like plants, need light, air, water and food for growth. The body needs besides these sleep and exercise to use well the food that is eaten.

Little children need food in small quantities and often, as they grow older the quantity, variety and time for feeding lengthens.

It is important that the hands and faces of little people be kept clean, so that they do not take into their bodies with food any disease germs.

What children eat builds them physically. Nothing should hinder the period of growth, for it can never be made up to them in later life.

Children should be taught to thoroughly chew their food, they should not be hurried in their eating, or fussed with and corrected during the meal. Foods that are not to be given children should not be temptingly displayed before them. For this reason their own mealtime and table is desirable.

The helpless child is dependent upon older people to provide for him; we should know and study his needs.

Sleep is an absolute necessity to any life; for children under three, there should be twelve hours sleep at night and a nap morning and afternoon. Children who are not given sleep enough at this time will reap the harvest of nerves and weakness all through life. The eyes rest during sleep, the heart does not need to work so hard and the nervous system is refreshed by sleep. Not only the health, but the child's intelligence depend upon good habits in early life. Plenty of fresh air in the sleeping room is as necessary as good food at the table. The child who gets up with a headache and a bad taste in the mouth has often slept in a poorly ventilated room. Cold air is not pure air. The normal child gets its exercise in play. Too violent play is a strain upon the nervous system.

Bathing the skin is as necessary as flushing the digestive tract with water. Waste products, either outside or in, clog the system and cause disease.

Wonder of Mechanism.

Half a century ago there was not a watch in existence capable of meeting the requirements of American railway time service today. Railway time inspection has set the limit of variation from true time, for its employees' watches at 30 seconds a week. This means that the balance wheel shall not vary in its motion to the extent of one vibration out of every 20,000. Taking into consideration the various causes of disturbance to which a railway engineer's watch is subjected, the jolts and jars, the changes of temperature and the magnetic influence incidental to the proximity of large masses of iron and steel, this performance is truly remarkable. That it is possible to secure such accuracy in such a tiny piece of mechanism subjected to those adverse influences is little short of marvelous, and justifies the claim that the watch of today is the most wonderful piece of mechanism that the ingenuity of man has ever produced.—Scientific American.

"Mother of Royaumont."

Royaumont abbey, one of the old Benedictine monastic establishments in France, has been turned into a hospital and is already crowded with the wounded from the ranks of the allies. At the head of the hospital is the sister of Sir John French, Mrs. Harley. The entire staff of assistants, surgeons, nurses and the executive force, is composed of women.

Every day Mrs. Harley makes the rounds of the temporary wards, every day a new face is added to the list of injured. Mrs. Harley and her co-workers have endeared themselves to the wounded French and English soldiers. Some of them call her the "Mother of Royaumont."

The lower floors of the abbey, a spacious structure, have been split up into wards and willing hands keep it supplied in bandages, while gifts of medical supplies were donated by various organizations.

Importation of Foreign Birds.

According to a recent paper by Dr. T. S. Palmer, the department of agriculture issues about five hundred permits annually for the importation of birds; the number of birds imported amounts to about half a million, and as many as 17,000 birds arrive in a single day. These include especially canaries, parrots and game birds, but the total number of species imported is about 1,500. The department exercises great vigilance to prevent the importation of bird diseases, such as the "quail disease."—Scientific American.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Hickman merchants are receiving their new fall goods.

The boys who are making splendid gravel highways where only mud-holes "grew" before — are also in Burbank's class.

The September term of Fulton Circuit Court will begin at Hickman one week from next Monday. There is a large docket for this term—including what is called the "nightrider" cases.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a formal notice of a special election in the city of Hickman, called for Sept. 20th, the purpose being to learn the will of our citizens in the matter of procuring a better fire protection for the town. Although we have had no disastrous fires recently, it is still a matter of fresh recollection that Hickman experienced some very costly fires; so many of them that many fire insurance companies have pulled out of the town, and will write no more business here. But individual loss, on account of inadequate fire fighting facilities, is of more importance than the loss of insurance companies, because a few still remain in business. Hickman people will average losing every year as much as the fire truck will cost, so little argument can be advanced against voting a small bond issue, which will repay the taxpayers its full cost each year—in saving property and cutting insurance premiums down several hundred dollars per annum. It ought to, and we believe will, be voted in a whoop: Fire protection effects the interest of the poorest and wealthiest citizens alike. Let's have the fire department.

If the city has't such an ordinance, one should be enacted compelling owners of vacant lots to cut the weeds. Civic pride and common decency demand it.

It has been suggested by a citizen of Hickman and cotton planter that Hickman should have an open cotton storage shed, where cotton might be placed in the bale, and held a few days. This would serve two purposes—1st, to give the planter a place to put his cotton when he takes it from the gin; and 2nd, if the shed would accommodate from 300 to 500 bales, it would be an easy matter to get buyers here to bid on such quantities, thus saving all this shipping and storage charge. This is certainly a suggestion worthy of consideration. The gentleman offering this suggestion gave an example of what it means to have bidders on the ground. On one occasion he had 25 bales on the river bank. He wrote several cotton firms, enclosing samples, for a bid. The best received was $1 1/2. This offer was turned down. Finally a buyer came to look at the cotton in response to an invitation to do so. He said $1 1/2 was the best he could do. The cotton owner refused to discuss the matter further, and told the buyer he was holding for 11 1/4. He started off and the buyer called him back; "Ship us that cotton," he said. With competitive buyers on the ground, a great deal more could be realized. The way to get them here is to have a shed, where a sufficient amount could be accumulated to interest the buyers. A shed 40x100 feet would meet the requirements. This could either be a free building or could be put up by a stock company or individual and operated for a small fee. At any rate, the matter is worth investigating.

RIVER IS UP AGAIN.

The recent heavy rains have brought the river up again, covering much of the low lands unprotected by levee. Yesterday's predictions were for 39 feet at Cairo, with slight excess of this figure. The rains of today may mean a still higher stage and some apprehension is felt pending reports from other sections. With a full river and additional rains, much damage could result.

The gauge at Cairo yesterday read 37.8, a rise of 1.1.

HUMANS ARE WRONG.

In the American Magazine Walter Prichard Eaton has a series of love stories entitled "The Bird House Man." The first story is called "The Song Sparrow," and in the following extract taken from it two characters discuss bird mating and human mating.

"Did you ever reflect," said Alec Farnum, "that the birds never make a mistake in mating? It's only we poor blundering humans who get all mixed up in our mating?"

"Yes, there's that Sally Fisher, she's married a Jew!" said Mrs. Plumb. "Can't no happiness come of marrying a Jew, I say."

"I'd go further than that," smiled the man. "It isn't so much Jew or Chinese or Slav that makes the difference in us humans; it's our souls. Some of us are wild ducks, and some of us are hermits, and some of us are domestic robins, or merry chickadees or cantankerous crows. There are nightingales and song sparrows, as well as hawks and grackles. But we don't find our own kind at mating time. Do you know why we don't, Mrs. Plumb?"

"No. Will you have some more peas?" said she.

"I will; they are delicious," he answered. "The first early peas are always delicious. The answer to my question is that the circulation among souls is not free enough. It is too constricted. Love, Mrs. Plumb, is with us a matter of proximity. We have to love, it's our nature. If we are a song sparrow, and there is another song sparrow in sight, we foolishly fall in love with the grackle next door. That's the whole trouble with humanity!"

Danger Signals

NATURE has planned some signals to show danger to a person's health. The signals which may indicate tuberculosis are given below:

First.—A cough that hangs on for more than a month.

Second.—A gradual, steady loss of weight, and often of appetite.

Third.—A slight feverish condition, lasting a little while every afternoon.

Fourth.—A loss of strength or energy.

Fifth.—Streaks of red in the sputum.

Sixth.—Sweats at night.

Any one of these things may indicate tuberculosis, and they may indicate something else. If any one of them persists more than a month without any sign of recovery, go to a doctor and ask for a careful examination. It may not be tuberculosis, but it is best to know exactly.

Do not trust in any patent medicine to relieve you of any of these symptoms. Most patent medicines do more harm than good.

This information, given by the Kentucky Tuberculosis Commission, is accurate, and a knowledge of these things applied to your own condition, if you have tuberculosis, may lead you to the physician in time to be saved.

CHURCH AND CHOIR

CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES.

Yes, we have had rain, and more rain, but the Bible School has been gaining slowly all the time and continues to grow and of course it will be larger next Sunday for you will be there again in your place, and you who have never been there will come, at least some of you, and you won't regret your coming. You will thoroughly enjoy it.

On last Friday, the day of the food sale at the home of Mrs. W. P. Skinner, you will remember it rained, but that did not stop the sale as there was a good attendance, but not all who wanted to attend could do so, and for that reason, it is planned to continue the sale on next Friday, the 27th, at which time they will offer foods of all kinds, and during the sale, beginning at 3:30, they will serve ice cream and cake, and also offer some fine home-made candy for sale. Phone your orders and let all members of the church and congregation phone Mrs. Skinner what you will furnish.

Don't forget the sermon at 11 o'clock and the Lord's supper following. Come. This is his invitation; will you reject it?

Let every one remember the union service at night at 7:45. Bro. Walker will preach and that insures a good sermon. Splendid old fashioned music. Everybody come.

There will be the regular services at the First M. E. church Sunday. If weather permits, preaching in the railroad park.

Millinery for the Late Summer

Just now, when it is late for summer and too early for autumn millinery, the buying of a hat is interesting—and distracting. But a good millinery maxim may settle one's mind, and that is, when in doubt, choose a sailor. With this shape it is impossible to go wrong, for they are made and trimmed in such great variety that everyone may be suited.

There is a general widening of brims in the latest sailors and much efficient millinery work in finishing them. Crowns are moderate in size or small. It is to the management of trimming that one must look for originality.

Corbeau or dark navy blue with white is a favorite color combination and as smart and effective as the everywhere popular black and white. For August, solid white, black and white and dark blue and white may be depended upon as authentic good style. These color combinations appear in the body of the hat or are added to all-white shapes in their trimming.

Three sailors for the late summer are shown in the group pictured. At the left a wide-brimmed hat of white satin has a white brim and dark blue crown. The brim is bordered with a wide flange of the dark blue satin. A big, spreading bow of ribbon is made of dark blue moire laid over a plain white taffeta. It consists of loops that extend far beyond the crown on which the bow is perched; they reach to the edge of the brim at the right side. A long jet pin is thrust in the bow apparently fixing it to the crown.

The hat at the center is in solid white and the shape is shown in several materials, as kid, satin or straw braid. Its trimming is a band of heavy black and white striped ribbon with the simplest of bows at the front centered with a pearl buckle.

Another all-white shape is trimmed with white ribbon having a wide satin border. The simple tied bow at the front is mounted on the crown, which is of the sloping variety.

Long stems, a single flattened daisy in dark, rich dahlia shades, and one or two glossy leaves in dark green are laid about the brim for trimming.

Large Jet Beads.

There is in many directions a pronounced vogue for large cut jet beads, many serving to finish off a decolletage, placed either in close, serrated lines, or at wide intervals, united by chains of smaller beads. Again a mass of festooned chains is slung about both corsage and skirt, while sequin net frequently figures as a slim under-skirt to a full tunic of plain net.

LANKFORD TRIAL TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK.

The second trial of A. L. (Bub) Lanford, of this city, on charge of killing Mr. Tyler, will be held at Wickliffe, Ky., next week. The witnesses, about 75 in all, have been summoned to appear at Wickliffe Monday.

It will be remembered that the defendant was tried for this offense last year at Wickliffe, but the trial resulted in a hung jury. Judge Gordon is the special judge who will hear the case.

All of the boost for the upper bottom levee seems to be coming from the Hickman side of the water. The Courier says the building of the levee will mean thousands of dollars to Hickman every year. We would like to hear what some of the Hickman county farmers, who own hundreds of acres in the upper bottom think of a government levee.—Clinton Gazette.

HAD ITS ORIGIN IN AMERICA

British King's Royal Rifle Corps, Now in France, Raised in 1755 in the United States.

There is a keen rivalry among the various regiments of the British army in every way. Naturally the rivalry is greatest where fighting is concerned, and every regiment is only too eager to take part in the war, and so add more fighting honors to its name.

The regiment with the greatest number of battle honors is one that has already been in the thick of the fighting in France, the King's Royal Rifle Corps. Already in the great war it has acquired another Victoria Cross, that of Major Dimmer of the Second battalion.

In the Boer war the regiment carried off two V. C.'s, fourteen D. S. O.'s, and thirty-five D. C. M.'s. It has been through about forty battles, the names of the most important of which appear on the cap badge.

The King's Royal Rifle corps was originally raised in 1755 in the United States, when those states belonged to us, and was known then as the Sixtieth (Royal American) Regiment of Foot. It is supposed to have been the first regiment to be armed with the rifle.—Pearson's Magazine.

Farmers' Wives.

In Farm and Fireside appears a little article entitled, "The Greatest Partnership in the World," in the course of which the author comments as follows on farmers' wives:

"The farmer's wife knows more about her husband's business than any other man's wife knows about his. She has a fairer, clearer and more helpful understanding of it than the average lawyer's, doctor's, or merchant's wife can possibly have about her husband's business, for she lives and works with her husband on their 'plant.' The farmer's wife is the farmer's partner in more senses than one. In the majority of cases she actually operates certain departments of the business.

"Most wives have genuine interest and some information about their husband's business, but the farmer's wife, living with her partner on their plant, occupies a unique position among all wives. With their greater opportunity for helpfulness than her city sisters, her responsibilities have increased proportionately. All honor and respect to her who carries this heavier burden."

Confusion of Tongues.

Most people are so sparing of the use of languages other than their own that they have little idea that there are more than 4,000 languages in the world. There are six languages common in Austria-Hungary, and Emperor Franz Joseph is master of them all. It is said that there are 60 vocabularies in Brazil. In Mexico the Nahuatl is spoken in 700 dialects. There are hundreds in Borneo, while in Australia there is no classifying the complexities. According to the latest statistics, English is at present spoken by 130,000,000, German by 100,000,000, Russian by 70,000,000, French by 40,000,000, and Italian by 40,000,000, and it is constantly on the increase owing to the increase in commerce in Spain.

Seville Nights.

In all the principal plazas and gardens of Seville moving picture screens are erected and small tables and chairs set out, the exhibitors either making their profits from the drinks sold or by rental of chairs at two cents each. Thousands of people go nightly to the different plazas and gardens, and the entire life of the city for about four months centers around these moving picture shows.—From Commerce Reports.

HOLD YOUR COTTON.

President Wilson will shortly address a word of warning to the cotton growers of the South, it became known Tuesday. He will urge them not to become panic-stricken and, by throwing all of their cotton on the market at once, at a time when it has just been declared contraband, disrupt business conditions. He will urge them, it is understood, to take advantage of the facilities of the reserve banking system, and to hold their cotton for fair prices.

So far as could be learned the president will make no reference to any negotiations with Great Britain or to any proposals that the British government may have with respect to backing the market or keeping up the price.

KICKED BY HORSE.

Attorney J. B. Wickliffe was seriously hurt last Saturday afternoon by being kicked by a horse. He had just arrived at his country home and unhitched his horse from the buggy and after turning him loose struck him with the bridle, when the horse kicked him with both feet on the left side just below the heart, breaking several ribs. Physicians were summoned and administered to his injuries and late reports from him say he is getting along splendidly and will soon recover.—Ballard Yeoman.

PRAISES ROAD WORK UNDER WAY HERE.

From the Union City Commercial we clip the following:

Last Thursday afternoon, while enroute to Hickman, Ky., (in a Ford) we were halted some three miles east of that place by thirty or forty armed men, Col. Sid L. Dodds being in command. These men were armed with implements for road building. Some plowing, others driving scrapers and hauling. At this point it looked like the German army building forts.

Just think of it—forty men and eighty mules all going as regular as the clock. We were permitted to proceed on our way after an enjoyable talk with Col. Dodds. On we went over the road bed that would do credit to the Illinois Central or Great Pacific Railroads. But presently we were more amazed to find ourselves within the lines of another battalion armed with plows, shovels, wagons and some of the best young mules in Western Kentucky or Tennessee. These men were going and coming like bees to a hive, all placing gravel upon this well-built road bed.

"What is that coming over yonder mound? Look. Is it coming this way? Get in the car boys and lets go." These were the words used by our own great townsman, T. R. Meadow. But after being assured by the civil engineer and his staff that it was only a twenty-ton rock crusher rolling the mettle on the road, he at once cooled down and enjoyed himself riding quite a distance over one of the most complete mettle roads in the South.

This work is being done under the supervision of Col. Dodds. Mr. Dodds is taking the same interest in building this great turnpike as he does in his private affairs. He lets nothing daunt him.

When the Commonwealth of Kentucky said, "If the counties will do so and so, we will do as much." Fulton county said, "We can't now." But Sid L. Dodds said, "Yes we can. Here is my personal check for $5,600. Here are tools and seventy-five teams and I am offered a steam roller. I will take my men and do it."

Only a click of the wire and the Camden gravel was soon being spread on what is now assured to be a hard road from Hickman to Fulton. This road will intersect the great Paducah-to-Memphis Highway at Jordan and the travel from Union City will now go by the way of the Tyler and Dodds homes, for this road would make even a Cadillac smile.

A wonderful man can do wonderful things and a good man is sure to do good things. Will Sid Dodds be through when he completes this road? No. He has only started. His great mind has conceived an idea that the coming generation must soon be harnessed to pull this great nation of ours, both church and State, and his eyes beam with sparkling sunshine when he says:

"I will soon have a graded school over in the other neighborhood. A house with every convenience and will be able to see the laddies and lassies go to and for each day in an auto-taxi. This is my hobby and she goes."

Those words! I hear them now. Oh to God if I could only live fifty years and see the next generation reap the seed from the harvest this wonderful man and his associates in Kentucky and Tennessee are now sowing.

Right here and now, I want to say to our honorable and worthy townsman, Walter Reynolds, also to his co-workers, have patience, the lost sheep will soon be home. They are coming one by one. For years you and your comrades have worked so untiringly. Your minds were strong. You were able to see a golden future.

My eyes are now open. I see. I know I see, and I will say to you as our leader of West Tennessee good roads, I have followed you, but afar off. I will now go with you to help. Will furnish my part of the elbow grease, all the lingo-dental music I possess and we will see if we can meet Col. Dodds about half way to the beautiful Bluff City at the head of the deep water-way of the great Mississippi. W. R. MANLEY.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

BLINKENTOWN.

THERE'S a place I know,
when the night winds blow,
That is fair as a day in May;
And the bells they ring, and the birds they sing
To the children who come from play;
For they come in trains over hills and plains
From a land that is far, far down;
And there's laughter bright through the long still night
In the kingdom of Blinkentown.
Oh, it's Blinkentown for the little man,
As he climbs on his mother's knee,
For the train will speed
Where the one star lead
To a kingdom of mystery!
Oh, it's Blinkentown when the sun is low,
And the sand man has gone his way,
But the train will wait
By the big star gate
And be home at the break of day!

All the trains, they say, make a bright array
With their cushions of crimson blue;
And the engineer (tis a custom queer)
Never whistles, but whispers, "Hush!"
And the fare they pay in the oddest way
On this Limited Armchair road.
'Tis a good night kiss, and they say that this Is collected ten times a load.
—Rosee Gilmore Stott.

Constipation Causes Most Ills.

Accumulated waste in your thirty feet of bowels causes absorption of poisons, tends to produce fevers, upset digestion. You belch gas, feel stuffy, irritable, almost cranky. The consensus of opinion is that cotton will open at between two and three cents. But there is really no tangible basis for this prediction. Much depends upon the final action taken by England in regard to her declaration of cotton as contraband. The South, through the U. S. authorities, will protest against this action—and the protest promises to be about as effective as pouring water on a duck's back. If any relief comes, it will have to be by some other process; England will not back up.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. LINER TORPEDOED;
TWO AMERICANS LOST.

The White Star Line Arabic was torpedoed and sunk on her way to New York by a German submarine at 9:15 o'clock Thursday morning southeast of Fast-nett.

The steamer, according to the White Star Line, was attacked without warning and went down in 11 minutes. Of the 423 persons on board—181 passengers and 342 members of the crew. At least five passengers, two of them Americans, and 40 members of the crew lost their lives. Nine others are missing and are believed to have perished.

The two Americans lost were Mrs. Josephine Bruguiere, of New York, and Edmond T. Woods. Mrs. Bruguiere was thrown into the water and was kept afloat for some time by her son, Louis, who was forced to relinquish his hold when he was struck by a piece of wreckage. Nothing was seen of Woods after the steamer was struck.

The torpedo that sank the Arabic, struck her on the starboard side, 100 feet from her stern. The vessel had left Liverpool Wednesday afternoon and was on a southerly course, well off the Irish coast, doubtless with a view to avoiding the submarines which frequent waters nearer the shore.

When the vessel was some 50 miles west of where the Lusitania was sunk in May the German underwater boat rose to the surface and launched a torpedo. The marksmanship of the Germans was deadly accurate and the big liner settled quickly and disappeared from view.

Fourteen steamers, with a total tonnage of 47,568, were sunk Thursday and Friday by German submarines. This toll established a record for the period.

Three other vessels reported torpedoed may add another 26,965 tons to the aggregate destroyed on Tuesday and Wednesday. So far as known there has been no loss of life except in the sinking of the White Star Liner Arabic.

U. S. NEVER DECLARED COTTON CONTRABAND.

On the eve of the harvest of the South's principal crop—cotton—an extraordinary interest is manifest in the outcome of the allies' action in putting cotton on the contraband list. Indeed, the prosperity of the western half of Fulton county depends largely upon the profitable marketing of this staple. In view of this fact, the Courier gives below the essential parts of an article from the pen of Hon. A. R. Watson, former corporation council for the city of New York, who is considered eminent authority in the matter of international law. It has been persistently contended by the English, and no small part of our countrymen, that the United States set the precedent in making cotton contraband. This is utterly untrue, as shown by official records, and the allies are "cutting the cloth to suit the garment" when they put cotton on the forbidden list.

In part, Mr. Watson says:

The better known case involving the capture of cotton occurred in course of correspondence between Secretary of State Bayard, in 1886, and Mr. Muriaga, Spanish minister, the latter interceding in behalf of the claimants of the cotton which had been seized on Confederate territory during the Civil War. The Confederate government, it will be remembered, requisitioned all cotton, using it as its chief resource for the purchase of arms and ammunition. Adverting to the circumstances, Mr. Bayard asserted that there was no doubt that cotton might lawfully be seized as "contraband of war." Mr. Muriaga was prompt to point out that raw cotton was not contraband in its nature; was not so regarded by civilized nations, and was not so treated by the United States during the Civil War. Mr. Bayard, writing some weeks later, unreservedly conceded the point, disclaiming any purpose to sustain the capture upon the doctrine of contraband. Strange to say, both Hall and Wharton (Hall—Internat. Law, 5th Ed., 664; Wharton's Internat. Law, Dig 111, 438), inadvertently overlooking both the disclaimer by Mr. Bayard and the inherent inapplicability of the repudiated terminology to the facts, treats the incident as an occasion on which the United States has regarded cotton as contraband of war. Though the error is set forth and explained with diagrammatic lucidity in Prof. Moore's Digest of International Law it yet persists with authority and strength of gospel in the minds of some of our newspaper editors and publicists, either too indolent to examine the records, or whose patriotic sensibilities have been cajoled into a condition of unresisting and unquestioning concurrence upon any proposal deemed favorable to our friends the allies' cause.

Russia, also, let it be noted, when at war with Japan, added raw cotton to its list of contraband, upon the ground that raw cotton was used in the manufacture of explosives. It is interesting now to recall that this evoked a prompt and vigorous protest from Lord Lansdowne, then British secretary of state for foreign affairs, British India being the largest importer of raw cotton into Japan. The language used in the note to Count Lamsdorff, Russian minister of foreign affairs, is certain not to be overlooked by our accomplished and astute president in the course of the present controversy with Great Britain. "The quantity of raw cotton that might be utilized for explosives," wrote Lord Lansdowne, under date of Oct. 9, 1904, "would be infinitesimal in comparison with the bulk of cotton exported from India to Japan for peaceful purposes, and to treat harmless cargoes of this latter description as unconditionally contraband, would be to subject a branch of innocent commerce, which is especially important in the Far East, to a most unwarrantable interference."

An earlier and still more pointed protest was addressed to the Russian foreign office by Secretary of State John Hay, under date of April 30, 1904, in the course of which it was said: "Articles which like coal, cotton and provisions, though ordinarily innocent are capable of warlike use, are not subject to capture and confiscation unless shown by evidence to be actually destined for the military or naval forces of a belligerent."

Space limitations forbid a more extended quotation from this interesting and significant correspondence. But, aside from affording clear and convincing statements of our own position and that of Great Britain at this time, it is also evidence that none of the corresponding powers considered the issue at all affected by the alleged Civil War precedent, of which so much is made at present by some of our countrymen.

We may come now to the Declaration of London of 1908-9, held at the invitation of Great Britain for the express purpose of determining what were "the generally recognized rules of international law" in respect of maritime war. At the conference representatives of all the great powers considered exhaustively the doctrine of contraband, reaffirming the familiar classification of merchandise into absolute contraband, conditional contraband and noncontraband. Among the articles which it was stipulated were "not to be declared contraband of war," we find "raw cotton" at the head of the list. Furthermore, after the beginning of the present war, Great Britain announced that with slight modifications not affecting the present controversy, she would abide by the Declaration of London.

But there is a later and still more striking point to be considered. Those must have short memories who do not yet recall that in October of last year, by reason of what was then regarded as extraordinary and unauthorized interference with American cotton cargoes by British cruisers. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador in Washington, was requested to announce the position of the British government as affecting cotton. "This was not," as stated in the New York Times under date of Oct. 27, "Because the State Department had any doubt from the beginning that cotton must be treated as noncontraband, but because there had been so much doubt in American shipping and commercial circles regarding the attitude of Great Britain toward this great staple crop upon the marketing of which the American balance of trade was vitally dependent." The reply to this inquiry—which it happens was addressed to Mr. Lansing, officially counselor to the State Department, but then acting secretary, was in the following words: "Dear Counselor—In compliance with your request, I telegraphed on the 23d inst. to my government to inquire what was their view with regard to cotton, and whether or not they considered it to be contraband. You addressed this question to me, as you said there seemed to be doubts in certain quarters in this country as to the attitude of my government."

Last night I received a reply from Sir Edward Grey, in which he authorized me to give the assurance that cotton will not be seized. He pointed out that cotton has not been put in any of our lists of contraband, and as your department must be aware from the draft proclamation now in your possession, it is not proposed to include it in our new list of contraband. It is, therefore, as far as Great Britain is concerned, in the free list, and will remain there. I am, dear Mr. Counselor, yours sincerely,

"CECIL SPRING-RICE."

In spite of the foregoing, all of which is or ought to be known to any one who assumes authoritatively to discuss the doctrine of contraband, many persons, as well informed, are prone to admit the American case upon cotton to go by default. For sound and patriotic utterance upon this subject, we may await with calm assurance the president's words.

Palaces of Warring Rulers

THE palace type of modern Europe was fixed when Louis XIV transformed his hunting box at Versailles into the stately chateau which all the world knows. France nowadays dispenses with kings and emperors, but none the less decrees a semiregal housing for her presidents. The Tuilleries having been burned down, the only suitable remaining palace in Paris was the Elysee, and there the presidents of the third republic have succeeded one another, as indeed Napoleon III preceded them, during the brief period when he bore the name of president. The building, which is not large, was erected in 1718, its architect being Mole. Mme. de Pompadour inhabited it when Louis XV was king. Under Napoleon it sheltered the great emperor himself for a while, and then other members of his family; but the charm that abides in it comes from its frolicsome days. If it is not overwhelmingly splendid, it is at least not imitative. It is the genuine outcome of local French traditions, and belongs visibly to its time and place in the world's history.

In England there has been retained for the king a palace which has evolved out of a medieval fortress and still preserves many of its authentic features. Windsor is, in part at least, an ancient shell, adapted more or less satisfactorily to modern uses, says Martin Conway in Country Life. It matters not that some of its more medieval looking features, such as the Round Tower, are quite modern. It is the effect of the whole that counts, the aspect of the total building in its place, and that is superbly suggestive of the ancient dignity and long tradition which makes English life what it is and what the life of an English king fitly represents.

Palaces of Czar and Kaiser.

Only at Moscow and Prague are continental monarchs housed in palaces even remotely corresponding to Windsor. The Hradscin, indeed, hardly counts, for it is really the remains of a fortified city, the palace within it having been mainly rebuilt during the sixteenth and following centuries, though some fifteenth century parts are preserved within it. With Moscow it is otherwise. The Kremlin beyond question imposes itself upon a spectator as a great expression of Russia's past. Its assemblage of palaces, churches and national monuand some of the old survives, while all has a strong German flavor.

At Potsdam, however, under the orders of Frederick the Great, the French style obtained complete control and the new palace, founded after the close of the Seven Years war, is a manifestation of the French leanings and preferences of that remarkable personage. This is the favorite summer residence of the court, and it was here that Frederick III died after his brief and ineffectual reign. The building itself is not large as palaces go, but possesses the palatial air plainly enough. There is the central pavilion, surmounted by a dome, flanked by two forward reaching wings at the ends of the long connecting parts on either side of it.

Francis Joseph's Homes.

The emperor of Austria is, perhaps, more richly endowed with official residences than any other monarch except the king of Italy, who seems to have a palace in every city in his kingdom. The important palaces at Vienna are two, the Hofburg, in the heart of the city and Schoenbrunn, in the suburbs. The former is the chief official residence, the latter the usual abode of the emperor when at the capital of the empire. The Burg is not imposing architecturally. It has been the site of the residence of Austrian princes ever since the thirteenth century, but they were small people at that time, and nothing remains of the building which housed them.

What exists is an irregular assemblage of edifices of different late dates grouped about a number of courts, to which the public has access, so that there is a continual coming and going of people in every part. I have not seen the palace for more than thirty years, and my memory of it is vague. Ponderous decoration characterized some parts of it; others were barrack-like in their plainness. It consisted then of a number of more or less separate residences for royalties and officials and of various offices and rooms devoted to the storage of state archives and the great library, while the Augustiner church, in which all the Hapsburgs are buried, is attached to it.

The Turks not many centuries ago were knocking at the gates of Vienna; now they are united with Austria in alliance, so that the palace of the sulments corresponds to the close union still existing between the government and the religion of the people.

Moscow itself, however, is not the Russia of today; it is the Russia that has gone by. The czar may visit Moscow; he does not live there. In and about Petrograd he has several palaces: the Winter palace in the city, Gatchina, Tsarskoe-Selo, and others, but Peterhof is the favorite, and Peterhof was built in 1720 by Peter the great and afterwards enlarged by Catherine II. Here the influence of Versailles is obvious and confessed. The profusion of fountains, and especially the long canal leading straight away through the park from opposite the middle of the palace facade, are evident Versailles features, and plenty more might be cited.

No less French in style are some of the Prussian palaces. The old Berlin Schloss, indeed, has a continuous history of building and rebuilding from the days of Elector Frederick II in the fifteenth century, and though Frederick, the first Prussian king of that name, intended to do away with all the work of his predecessors, his big scheme was not entirely carried out, tan falls within the limits of my scattered subject. Needless to say, it has no architectural merit whatsoever, nor any claims to respect on the grounds of antiquity.

Since the time of Sultan Mahmud the Turkish palace that followed has itself been abandoned as a residence, and is only resorted to for certain state ceremonials; much of it in turn was burned down in 1863. It was built by Mohammed II, and often added to in the most capricious fashion. The principal entrance is the Sublime Porte. Within is nothing noteworthy except the Church of Saint Irene, which has been used as an armory. Here also are the mint, the treasury and other offices, as well as the halls of state, etc., difficult for a traveler to see, when I was there, and not (I am told) worth seeing. It is in the Dolmabahceh that the sultan actually lives, a long range of buildings, rather like the sea front of a row of houses, built of stone in a bastard Corinthian style, on the river-like shore of the Bosphorus. Internally it is a gaudy place, with much bright paint and gilding, plentiful stucco ornament and cupolas of brightly stained glass.

WILL REDRAFT NOTE.

The new American note to Great Britain on interference with neutral trade probably will be re-drafted because of the British order making cotton contraband. The note virtually had been completed. It now probably will treat at length the question of the validity under international law of the contraband order.

Cases under the contraband order must all go before British prize courts and there will be no informal negotiations as previously in connection with seizures.

The new American note, it is understood, will lodge formal protest against the placing of cotton on the contraband list and a lengthy diplomatic exchange probably will follow. Some officials believe the dispute eventually will be settled by arbitration.

GALL STONES LEAVE
CAIRO MAN QUICKLY.

Well Known Mechanic Has Striking Experience With Tanlac.

Stomach Sufferer For Years,
Gall Stones, Too.

Tanlac Did the Work For Me.

Cairo, Ills., Aug. 25, 1915.

D. L. Minter, of 209 Thirty-fourth street, a well known mechanic who is employed at the Singer Sewing Machine company's Cairo factory and a resident of that city for years, relates a remarkable instance of the power of Tanlac in the treatment of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder. Mr. Minter is a man of known high integrity and his general reputation insure his words careful consideration.

"I was thought to have gall stones," said Mr. Minter yesterday. "The terrible pains I suffered at times seemed to confirm this diagnosis. My stomach was all to the bad. I had to be terribly careful about my eating and, even then, my stomach would become swollen with gas after my meals, my side would be stabbed with pain and I would belch the sour kind of stuff. My food didn't seem to benefit me in the least. I lost weight and strength all the time, in spite of all the doctoring I did.

"There was no such thing as a whole night of sure-enough sleep. My rest was broken; I'd have to get up several times in the night and I was miserable all around. It was about this time that I began to read about Tanlac in all the papers and, when I heard how much good it was doing other people, I made up my mind to try it, too, though I had tried almost everything made.

"I've taken three bottles of Tanlac now and when you remember how thin and poor-looking I was a short time ago, you needn't ask what I think of it. Tanlac is the best tonic on the market. Since shortly after I started it, I have not had a single pain in my stomach; there's no more gas or belching and I have a splendid appetite. Everything tastes good and nothing causes me the least trouble that I eat. If there is anything the matter with me now in the way of gall stones, I can't tell it, for I feel better than I have in years. I give Tanlac full credit; nothing ever relieved me until I got it. It sure did do the work for me."

Tanlac, the preparation of which Mr. Minter speaks so enthusiastically, is being sold in Hickman exclusively at Hickman Drug Co., under the personal direction of J. L. Cooper's assistants who are called upon by scores of people daily to explain the remarkable powers of this medicine now.

PUREBRED BULLS IMPROVE LIVE STOCK

First Prize Champion Shorthorn Bull.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Fifty head of Shorthorn bulls to be used in improving native stock were recently sold at public auction at Asheville, N. C., bringing an average of $125 each. The sale was held by the American Shorthorn Breeders' association, as a result of the effort of the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with the office of farmers' co-operative demonstration work and the North Carolina experiment station. The prices received for the bulls were satisfactory both to those holding the sale and to the farmers purchasing the animals. About one-half of the bulls were purchased co-operatively.

A representative of the Shorthorn association selected the bulls in Missouri, the animals ranging in age from ten months to two years. Each bull was guaranteed by the association to be a breeder and as represented. The entire lot of animals was on exhibition to the public two days previous to the sale. Hundreds of farmers at this time looked the animals over, and discussed them with the representatives of the federal department of agriculture and demonstration agents.

In one case six farmers purchased one bull for their joint use. Each of them was a farmer who did not feel he could afford to purchase a high or even moderate priced bull for the few cows he owned; but securing the use of a good bull for one-sixth of the purchase price appeared as an excellent investment. In other cases fewer farmers clubbed together to purchase a bull which suited them. Other bulls were purchased by individual farmers who intend standing them at public service.

In most cases where communities purchased a sire co-operatively the bull is to be cared for and managed by one of the purchasers. The cost of keeping the bull will be prorated among the joint owners. In other instances the keeper of the sire is to retain a part of all of the service fee, depending upon the amount of service rendered. Where bulls are owned by an individual and stood at public service in the community a straight service fee will be charged.

Since January 1, 1915, several of the counties of the state have organized beef cattle breeders' associations. In other counties local clubs and associations have been formed, advocating the exclusive use of purebred bulls of one of the beef breeds. Where the capital was lacking to purchase the necessary sires for a community, by advancing the necessary money the local banks rendered invaluable service to their people.

The adoption of one breed of cattle by a county or section of a state and the co-operative purchasing and ownership of bulls are two of the principal factors which are being urged upon the people by the United States department of agriculture in the beef cattle extension work which is being conducted in co-operation with the various state agricultural colleges. This sale was a result of such work and proved to be a realization of the plan which was outlined.

Everything considered, the sale was successful. It enabled the farmers to inspect and purchase the cattle at their own price without the additional expense of traveling to the breeders' herd. The sale had a tendency to standardize and advertise the breeds in the section where it was held, and three times as many purebred bulls are now owned as there would have been if the farmers had been forced to go to the breeders' herds to purchase the animals. Other public sales are contemplated in the near future.

Grasses for Permanent Southern Pastures.

The best summer grass for pastures in the South is unquestionably Bermuda grass, and this should be made the basis for pasture mixtures on all soils except the very light sands. On rich loams the yield of four tons to the acre is sometimes obtained, and although in the uplands the yield is not so high, it is nevertheless sufficient for grazing purposes. Bermuda grass is, however, better suited than any other known plant for remedying the effects of erosion.

Lands may be set with Bermuda grass either by seeding or by planting small pieces of sod. Formerly the sod method was the one most commonly practiced, because the seed was so scarce and of such low vitality that it was frequently impracticable to use it. Now, however, seed from the Southwest, especially from Arizona, can be had of much better quality than that formerly on the market.

If seeding is resorted to, it should be done on a well-prepared seedbed, in March or April. Five pounds of seed to the acre will be sufficient, as the seed is very small and the grass spreads rapidly. If this small quantity of fine seed is mixed with cottonseed meal or dry earth, or, better, mixed with the seed of other pasture plants, its equal distribution will be made easier. A roller or light smoothing harrow may be used to cover the seed.

When pieces of sod are planted instead of seed, a common method is to lay off furrows about three feet apart and drop small pieces of sod in them every two or three feet, covering them with the foot. In almost any locality in the South it is usually easy to find a well-established Bermuda-grass sod. A shallow furrow can be cut with a turning plow, and this can be chopped up with a spade into pieces about two inches square. One advantage over seeding that this method possesses is that the planting of sod may be done at any time during the summer, and good stands have also been obtained with less preparation of the seedbed than is required for the other method. It is better, however, to prepare the seedbed thoroughly in either case. If the sod is planted in the spring, the grass will usually cover the entire ground the first season.

Bermuda grass is permanent on fertile soils in the South, endures long periods of drought without much injury, and is benefited rather than injured by the grazing and trampling of stock. It cannot, however, stand much shade, and therefore should not be used in woodland pastures. This characteristic is sometimes an advantage, for when it is desired to eradicate the grass a crop of oats and vetch sown in the fall and followed by a crop of cowpeas the following summer will usually result in freeing the field for cultivated crops. As a feed Bermuda grass is considered to be as nutritious as most of the other grasses.

With Bermuda grass agricultural authorities now recommend the sowing of lespedeza (Japan clover), which being a legume, enriches the soil with nitrogen. On rich, fertile loams lespedeza makes a very satisfactory crop of hay, but it will often grow on land so poor that nothing else can survive. It makes its best growth in midsummer and is not checked until the heavy frosts of fall.

Unless extremely close grazing is practiced, lespedeza is self-perpetuating. One method, in fact, of getting a stand is to cut some of the ripened hay and scatter it over the ground to be seeded. Under ordinary circumstances, however, it is usual to sow about 25 pounds of pure well-cleaned seed to the acre at any time after the danger from frost is past. Smaller quantities, however, will often be sufficient for a pasture, as it spreads rapidly in any suitable soil.

Bermuda grass and lespedeza are both suitable for summer pastures only. It is, therefore, desirable to seed with them something that will furnish winter grazing. The two plants best suited for this purpose are bur clover and white or Dutch clover. These are seeded in late summer or fall, bur clover at the rate of 15 pounds of hulled seed, or two bushels of the burs, to the acre, and white clover at the rate of four or five pounds to the acre. This combination of Bermuda grass, lespedeza, bur clover, and white clover is undoubtedly the best combination for pastures over the greater part of the cotton-growing region.

With such a mixture of good soil and a proper system of grazing, the pasture should increase in production for many years. The success of any permanent pasture, however, depends primarily on the fertility of the land at the start, and it is, therefore, good policy to put the land in good tilth. If the soil is deficient in organic matter, some green-manure crop such as cowpeas should be plowed under before the grass is seeded.

ED HOLT BOUND OVER.
BOND FIXED AT $500.

A case of more than passing interest was heard at Hickman, Saturday morning, by County Judge Elvis J. Stahr, in which Ed Holt, Boonie Jones and Robert Reeves were charged with detaining a woman against her will.

The woman in the case was the 14-year old daughter of J. P. Giles—Miss Hattie Giles—who resides in the Beech Grove neighborhood. The young lady was the only witness introduced. In substance she testified to having run away with Ed Holt, on Saturday night, Aug. 14, for the purpose of marriage. Their plans seem to have miscarried by reason of a mule "getting out," and they were forced to walk from their home to the home of James Owens, a relatives of Mr. Holt's, at Phillippy, Tenn., arriving there Sunday morning after daylight. Miss Giles said she was introduced to the Owens family by Mr. Holt as his wife, and that they spent two days as guests of the Owens, when, upon their return from church Monday night, her father arrived on the scene, and she was returned to the parental roof. It was explained by County Attorney Roney that, regardless of their intentions, Miss Giles was under the legal age of consent, hence, her willingness or intention of marriage could not alter the charge.

The defendants were represented by Atty's F. S. Moore and B. T. Davis.

Judge Stahr found the evidence against Jones and Reeves was not sufficient to convict them of any intention of wrong-doing; that they merely assisted the couple in eloping. Mr. Holt, however, was bound over to await the action of the grand jury. His bond was fixed at $500.

Fully two hundred people assembled to hear this trial and it was necessary, for this reason, to hold it in the big circuit court room.
